The objective of this study was to determine the seroprevalence of antibodies against Babesia canis and Anaplasma marginale in cats in France. Serum samples were obtained from 375 cats of various breeds housed in 23 cat shelters in the South of France. Three serum samples were obtained from each cat. An enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay was used to screen for anti-Babesia antibodies. Sera with a positive result were retested using a Western blot method and seropositivity was defined as detection of a single band of the appropriate molecular mass. IgG antibodies against A. marginale were tested by indirect immunofluorescence assay and IgM against B. canis by microscopic examination of blood smears. Among the 375 serum samples examined, 22 (6.0%) were positive for IgG antibodies against B. canis, 10 (2.7%) for IgG against A. marginale and 27 (7
