Using the new Motion Innovation Engine (MIE), the detailed and dynamic animations of players are made possible by perfecting the movements of the players in-game. The new technology also allows for animation flexibility when developing new player moves, and provides for fluid animation transitions, the ability to create more natural and consistent animations, and the optimisation of animations to ensure they work well in both realistic and in-game situations. The FIFA 22 DNA Motion Innovation Engine The MIE is the central component that powers the many animation functions of the game. New animations are driven by specific on-field movements that were filmed by 20 professional footballers – most notably Serie A and Bundesliga players – in full movement capture suits and enabled by the MIE. Over time, more and more footage will be recorded and used to enhance the coverage of in-game animations. We've recorded thousands of specific movements of the body on the pitch, which are then created in the simulator, refining the interaction of both the players and the ball. These captures are used as the foundation of the MIE, which provides for a new dynamic and realistic way to watch and play the game, feeling as if the player is actually on the pitch and is experiencing the intensity and unpredictability of the game. A new animation workflow The MIE also supports the creation of animations for players in different conditions and environments using the new animation pipeline developed for FIFA in Motion. This allows for more options and a greater degree of experimentation with animation at the development stage of the game. High resolution animations A new iteration of the in-game player models has been created. Each model is characterised by the different animations that are applied to it and the events that could be triggered by the player, and the different visibility information for each player. A new simulation engine, based on a 3rd party SDK, has been developed and is used to realistically simulate millions of animations, visual effects and player behaviours on the pitch, combined with other simulation workloads. The MIE has been optimised to achieve the highest frame rate possible, and the technology has been developed to be more efficient and increase the efficiency of upcoming features such as Natural User Interfaces. Adaptable control schemes The MIE provides more room for experimentation in in-game control schemes. Controls can be adapted to suit the different situations on the pitch, and the types of player behaviours that are important in each particular game scenario.

Features Key:

- FIFA 22 introduces “HyperMotion Technology.” Powerful and versatile, this technology uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay. Motion simulation will make every effort to look and feel like the real thing!
- New speed and accuracy controls. Get more damage, more dribbles, more passes and more shots per dribble.
- New crossing and free kicks function. New players can now hold the cross button to cross a ball in mid-air, and make defenders miss, while also turning on a dime, with new free-kick movement controls.
- New shooting controls. Players can now shoot with more conviction and accuracy.
- New defensive instincts. Players now adjust themselves on the run, anticipating the ball and anticipating what the opponent is going to do when he has the ball, all without the ball in contact.
- FIFA 17-inspired PES-style AI moments. When in possession of the ball, your player will anticipate the movements of the opposing team and make the most out of his or her opportunities, making sophisticated, reactive play a real-life experience. And for the first time, PES players will respond to your tactical instructions by changing key passes and making smart runs to form meaningful moves.
- New Zebra Crossing system. Players will now head towards open spaces and make for gaps in the defence instead of taking a deadball cross, turning on a dime, and running past defender with their back to goal.
- New control scheme. AI will now use their passing instincts to look for safe spaces and connect passes to teammates. Players will now receive the ball in challenging parts of the pitch, making them a better threat. Controlled passes will be made harder to intercept, allowing them to look sharp at all angles. New playmaker style passes will create insane moments, but will hurt both your best and worst players alike if used with reckless abandon.
- New visual presentation. Improved lighting and shadows, and seamless transitions from close-up to wide-angled gameplay, not to mention the addition of crowd voices to the crowd singing your players in mid-air. Or celebrate with the new “Victory”
