Volcano sightings, explosions at White Mountain KANEOHE — Warning signs have been placed around the now-defunct crater at White Mountain at a cost of over $4,000. Kanoho Elementary School and the Department of Land and Natural Resources began placing warning signs in the August after the last eruption of the 12,000-acre crater. "It was finally recommended that some kind of warning signs be placed along the perimeter," said Department of Land and Natural Resources spokesman Dan Dennison. "We considered some temporary signage, e79caf774b
